

Lindsay is honored to serve as the Executive Director for both Jacksonville Classical Academy (JXC) campuses—Riverside and Fort Caroline.

Prior to her work in education, she was the co-owner of an electronics company that sold products across the U.S., Australia and Europe. Before business ownership, Lindsay had 10+ years of experience in sales and talent acquisition after making a career switch from the political sector in Washington, DC, where she worked in fundraising, media, and grassroots mobilization at several pro-family public policy organizations.

Her passion for classical education began when she became a mom. Beginning in 2018, seeing no public or private schools in Jacksonville that were purely classical, and realizing what her daughters would be missing if they did not receive a classical education, she decided to start a classical academy.

Lindsay founded Cornerstone Classical Academy around her kitchen table and worked tirelessly to open the school in a very challenging inaugural year: 2020. After opening, she spent the next 2 1/2 years stabilizing the school. Classical education became a passion when seeing first-hand the impact it had on her daughters and other students. She serves as the Governing Board Chair at CCA.

Once CCA stabilized, Lindsay began working for JXC in 2022 and with her experience at CCA, she helped stabilize and brought joyful classical education to the two campuses.

Lindsay is local to the Jacksonville community, growing up in Neptune Beach, and is a Fletcher High School graduate. She has a Bachelor's degree in Public Relations from the University of Florida and bleeds orange and blue.

Lindsay also serves as the Distinguished Board Chair for classical charter schools for the Classical Teaching Corps, a member of the Academic Board of Advisors to the Classical Learning Test, the Board Secretary of the Will King Foundation, and a member of the Local Advisory Board for Truist.

Her most important job, though, is being a mom to her two daughters, Virginia and Blakely, who were the inspiration to start CCA in the first place and inspire her to continue bringing a world-class education to JXC students to one day graduate free-thinking, virtuous Americans.
