

With 22 years of experience in education, Mrs. Murphy has dedicated her career to fostering student success and literacy development. She has taught both secondary and elementary special education, served as a first-grade teacher, and held leadership roles as an assistant principal for two years and a principal for eight years. Mrs. Murphy spent two years as a literacy coordinator, driven by her passion for ensuring every student has a strong literacy foundation.

Before entering the field of education, Mrs. Murphy worked in marketing and human resources, which provided her with a unique perspective that she brings to educational leadership. She holds a Bachelor of Science degree in professional communications, a Master of Education in special education, and certification in K-12 administration and supervision.

Outside of her professional life, Mrs. Murphy enjoys reading and painting, finding inspiration and relaxation through these creative outlets. In July 2024, she moved to Jacksonville, Florida, where she is excited to continue embracing new opportunities and experiences.

Mrs. Murphy is the proud mother of two children, Kerrigan and Hagen. Kerrigan is currently a senior in college, and Hagen is a sophomore in college. She is honored to serve as the principal at Jacksonville Classical Academy - Fort Caroline. Mrs. Murphy looks forward to leading our community to success.
